Before SMITH, GRUENDER, and STRAS, Circuit Judges.

PER CURIAM.

Michael Frazier claims a correction-center nurse withheld his medications. He did not, however, establish that he appealed the denial of his administrative grievances before suing. See Smith v. Andrews, 75 F.4th 805, 808 (8th Cir. 2023) (explaining the exhaustion requirement and applying de novo review); see also Awnings v. Fullerton, 912 F.3d 1089, 1098–99 (8th Cir. 2019) (recognizing that unsupported allegations are not enough to avoid summary judgment). We accordingly affirm the district court’s¹ grant of summary judgment in the nurse’s favor. See 8th Cir. R. 47B.

¹The Honorable D.P. Marshall Jr., United States District Judge for the Eastern District of Arkansas, adopting the partial recommendation of the Honorable Edie R. Ervin, United States Magistrate Judge for the Eastern District of Arkansas.
