

United States Court of Appeals
For the Eighth Circuit

No. 25-1247

United States of America

Plaintiff - Appellee

v.

Travis Michael Crissler

Defendant - Appellant

Appeal from United States District Court for the District of North Dakota - Eastern

Submitted: May 1, 2026

Filed: May 6, 2026

[Unpublished]

Before LOKEN, SMITH, and BENTON, Circuit Judges.

PER CURIAM.

Travis Crissler appeals the sentence the district court¹ imposed upon revoking his supervised release for a third time. On appeal, he argues the above-Guidelines-range 24-month prison term with no supervised release to follow is a substantively unreasonable sentence.

After review, we conclude that the sentence is not substantively unreasonable, as the record reflects that the district court adequately considered the relevant sentencing factors and did not give significant weight to an improper factor or commit clear error of judgment in weighing factors. See United States v. Miller, 557 F.3d 910, 917-18 (8th Cir. 2009) (standard of review); United States v. Larison, 432 F.3d 921, 923 (8th Cir. 2006). The district court did not abuse its discretion in weighing some relevant factors more heavily than others, see United States v. Bridges, 569 F.3d 374, 379 (8th Cir. 2009); or by imposing the instant sentence to run consecutively to certain of Crissler's state court sentences, see United States v. Johnson, 827 F.3d 740, 745 (8th Cir. 2016).

Accordingly, we affirm the judgment of the district court.
