release. Her counsel has moved to withdraw and has filed a brief arguing that the revocation sentence is substantively unreasonable.

After careful review of the record, we conclude that the sentence was not an abuse of discretion, as the district court properly considered the relevant 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) factors, see United States v. Keatings, 787 F.3d 1197, 1202 (8th Cir. 2015) (standard of review), and imposed a sentence below the statutory limit, see United States v. Tschebaum, 306 F.3d 540, 543-44 (8th Cir. 2002) (upon revocation of probation, district court begins sentencing process anew and may impose any sentence within the statutory limits that would have been available at the initial sentencing); see also 18 U.S.C. § 1623(a) (penalty of not more than 5 years in prison).

Accordingly, we grant counsel's motion to withdraw and affirm.
