Before KELLY, KOBES, and JUSTIN D. SMITH, Circuit Judges.

PER CURIAM.

Myles Jones appeals the 180-month prison sentence the district court¹ imposed under the Armed Career Criminal Act (ACCA) after he pleaded guilty to being a felon in possession of a firearm, in violation of 18 U.S.C. §§ 922(g), 924(e). He argues that the district court erred in sentencing him as an armed career criminal because two of his prior convictions did not constitute separate offenses.

Upon careful review, we conclude that the district court did not err in imposing Jones's ACCA sentence because, at the change-of-plea hearing, he admitted that he had been convicted of three residential burglaries that were committed on different occasions. See 18 U.S.C. § 924(e) (any person who violates § 922(g) and has three previous convictions for violent felonies committed on occasions different from one another shall be imprisoned at least 15 years); United States v. Stowell, 82 F.4th 607, 609 (8th Cir. 2023) (en banc) (reviewing de novo determination that defendant committed prior offenses on different occasions); Erlinger v. United States, 602 U.S. 821, 833-35 (2024) (virtually any fact that increases penalty, including whether offenses occurred on different occasions for ACCA purposes, must be resolved by unanimous jury beyond reasonable doubt or "freely admitted in a guilty plea").

Accordingly, we affirm.
